PARTICIPATING ARTISTS

ANTHONY BAMIDELE AKINLADE. Born in Ibadan, Oyo-State, Nigeria, he studied at the Yaba College of Arts and Technology, Lagos, Nigeria from 1984 – 1989, and worked as an illustrator with Rosabel Advertising in Lagos. Through the Society of Nigerian Art, Anthony exhibited at the Mydrim Gallery, Gallery Africane, the Didi Museum, and the National Museum and Archives in Nigeria before coming to Canada in 1998. Further studies have included graphic arts at Humber College, Toronto, and he is presently completing an Art Program at York University.

He states, “I’m in a kind of process. The process of knowing the truth as is now being projected in this post-modern world. A world that is busy dismantling the myths of the modern world; the exploitive effect of a social system, deconstructing and reconstructing, in the process of self renewal and self transformation. Whenever this question, “What is Art?” crops up, one must be reminded and accept that it is not the original subject that matters or determines the quality or worth of an art anymore, but rather how the artist is able to transform what can be seen and adjudged to what is phenomenally never seen, yet accepted. Therefore, the true subject of Art is man himself. It is what it does to him, how he reacts to it, and what he makes of it that perhaps opens up a Pandora box of future Art to a new conception of creative liberty.”

DIANE CIZEK.

TINA CONLON. Tina Conlon was born in Manila in 1954 and immigrated to Canada with her parents and seven siblings in 1972. As an anti-poverty, social justice and food security activist, she grew to appreciate new ways of public engagement drawing on the different elements of art to provide expression for concepts, ideals and faith. Daughter of Filipino artist Rolando Lampitoc, Tina only seriously took up art in September 2005 at the Art Centre of Central Technical School. While training for her Master of Divinity at the University of Toronto School of Theology, she discovered that the Philippine Independent Church, which her family took an active part in its formation, has full communion with the Anglican Church of Canada. She joined the Cathedral Church of St. James with her family in December 1988 where all three of her children have been baptized in the presence of the Rev. Bayani Rico, a Philippine Independent priest.

AILEEN COWAN.

DANIEL FOBERT. Daniel Fobert is a native of the Toronto area and went to schools in the Brampton area where he did private art lessons under Jack Turner at Arbra Jackson Studios in his high school years. Graduating from Central Peel Secondary School in 1972 from its Arts and Science Program, Danny entered the Graphic Design Program at Sheridan College in Oakville which included other fine art related courses.

After graduating in 1974, he found work at several publishing houses in Toronto and eventually took a position at Screen Art Products in 1975 which he and his partner Mervyn Patey took over in 1982, a business which they both run to this day. His time at Screen Art has been shared out as a screen printing artist, pre- and post-print, and desktop design which includes historic wallpapers which hang in historic houses across Canada. He has also done some short run screen prints of his own art.

Since the late 1980s, Daniel has done life drawing, water and oil painting at Artists 25, a nonprofit artists' cooperative in Toronto, and also has a studio in his High Park home. He has done private commissions and has only recently started showing his work at several venues in Toronto which have included the Humming Bird Centre and the last five art exhibits in the Archives and Museum of St. James' Cathedral.

MARIA GABANKOVA. Maria Gabankova was born in the former Czechoslovakia into the family of artists, Antonia Lanik-Gabbaek and Jozef Gabanek. Following the Warsaw Pact Invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968, Maria's family left for Austria and later immigrated to Canada. In addition to apprenticing with her parents, she studied drawing, painting, sculpture and printmaking at the University of British Columbia, the Vancouver School of Art, Montreal School of Art and Design, and the Art Students' League of New York.

Since 1978 the artist has exhibited extensively in Canada, U.S.A., South Korea, and Europe. Recent shows have been in the Michalsky Dvor in Bratislava, Slovakia, Newtown City Hall in Prague, and The Loop Gallery, Redeemer University College, and the Institute of Christian Studies in the Toronto area. Maria has received several awards, and her work is represented in private and public art collections in North America and Europe. Realistic figurative representation with conceptual emphasis on the spiritual and Biblical has been the central theme of the artist's work.

Portraiture also holds a special focus with an impressive record of commissioned portraits including: novelists Josef Skvorecky and Zdena Salivarova-Skvorecka, poet Karel Kryl, composer Oscar Morawetz, pianist Antonin Kubalek, NHL hockey player Miroslav Frycer, and figure skating world champion Aja Vrzanova. Maria Gabankova is an associate professor at the Ontario College of Art and Design in Toronto.

PATRICIA GOSS. Artist's statement. "In carving stone I express what is important to me: my values, ideas, and feelings, which unite with the energy in the stone. Sometimes I have a concept. At other times, I respond to the stone itself and develop the form as I work. In interacting with the stone, both the conscious and unconscious play a role. My work is abstract. My intent is to make a simple statement. I work with many types of stone but prefer working in marble, as it is more challenging. I employ a carved, sensuous line to express growth, renewal, transformation. Rough textures against smooth suggest conflicts to be resolved.

I am very committed to this inner work and carve daily in my studio. I also attend workshops in Italy, Greece, England and Canada."

WILLIAM HO. An internationally renowned artist and speaker, William Ho is famous for his poetic and eclectic style creation, particularly with respect to Chinese brush painting and living art installation. His creations are highly sought after by institutional and private collectors, and he has been invited to exhibit his art works in different parts of the world including the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa, the National Museum of Nature, The Royal Ontario Museum, the Art Gallery of Ontario, The Varley Gallery in Markham, the Chinese Cultural Centre, and Japanese Cultural Centre in Canada, and government buildings and galleries in the United States and Hong Kong.

Mr. Ho has been teaching internationally, including at the ROM, Tyndale University and Seminary, and the Chinese and Japanese Cultural Centres here in Toronto. He has been chairman, curator, juror and award recipient for numerous art exhibitions and competitions such as serving as the Chief Judge to pick the best painting for the National Exhibition of the Sumi-e Artist of Canada, and Chairman of the Art and Culture Committee of the Asian Heritage Month of Toronto, Citizen Group of Canada, and as Member of the Advisory Board of the Community Museum in the United States.

As a global citizen and passionate Canadian, Mr. Ho is also the author of a Chinese version of the Canadian national anthem, "O Canada". With backgrounds in art, culture, city planning, international politics and theology, Mr. Ho has been acting as a commentator and program host for various media programs in North America. He travels around the world to teach and share his vision and passion on Hope, Love, Life and Art. He is a profound thinker and writer, and has a deep love for children. He is the founder of the "Hope for the Future Campaign" for suffering children worldwide. He states, "Hope gives us direction to live, and love gives us reason to live! Children are our future. Let us give the future more hope and love."

SYED IQBAL. A senior visual artist from Toronto, he lived and worked in Dhaka, Bangladesh prior to moving to Montreal in 1996. During this period he held several exhibitions, including three solo shows in Dhaka and two solo shows in Montreal. After moving to Toronto in 2002 he continued to work on his surrealistic themes and participated in the prestigious IMAGO Canadian National Art Competition where he was selected as a finalist among 800 artists – a singular recognition of his depth and talent as an artist. In 2003 he exhibited in a two person show organized under the auspices of the South Asian Studies Program of the University of Toronto.

Iqbal's Tears of Nature and Our Women series, completed in 2000-2004, received critical acclaim both in Bangladesh and Canada. Through Tears of Nature, he expressed concern with unsustainable development and irreversible loss to biodiversity. Iqbal is not an alarmist, but through his compelling projection on canvas of a world devoid of nature, he raises awareness. His canvases cry out to stop destruction of forests and farmlands, and demand an urgent need for action. His paintings from the Our Women series are done in blue, black and red acrylic on paper and bring out the pain and anguish of South Asian women living in a society dominated by inequality, religious bigotry and intolerance. He brilliantly portrays the struggle of women, and the social conditions that shaped them, made them, or victimized them.

Iqbal is also a writer and illustrator. He has written ten publications, three novels and seven short story books in the Bengali language.

DAVID KIBUUKA. Everybody who is interested in the Ugandan art scene has heard of this visual artist. He is truly one of Uganda's greatest success stories, cultural ambassadors and role models. Born in Uganda, he began selling his paintings to international collectors through local galleries at the tender age of 11. Protégé to his brilliant late mentor and older brother, Henry Lutalo Lumu, the artist shared a passion for both the works of European art masters as well as traditional African artistry.

Later on in his life, he was able to fuse these two and create some of the most spectacular art on the international arts scene.

David Kibuuka is also known as one of the originators of Fragmentation, which is the distinguishing method of composing dominant and multifaceted visual images using mosaics of colour and form. This memorable stylistic innovation remains a characteristic of East African modernism, and Kibuuka, one of its most recognized practitioners. Kibuuka enrolled at Makerere University School of Fine Arts (Kampala) to begin his more intensive study of fine art, but because of political unrest during the Idi Amin period, he left Uganda and settled in Kenya for a few years, continuing to do his art. But political unrest would follow him there as well, and finally in 1983, he immigrated to Canada where he currently resides in Toronto.

In 1984, Kibuuka enrolled full time at the Ontario College of Art in Computer Animation, Computer Graphics, and Video Production and graduated in 1988. It was here where he would familiarize himself with video and computer graphics by working in an animation studio. These new skills would help him generate his signature futuristic style by creating movement and depth through strong flowing lines, shaded hues, and mosaic textures – adding contemporary and graphic elements to his classic and traditional influences. He is now giving workshops to those interested in learning the technique.

Through his art, he is managing to preserve images of Africa which are in danger of disappearing from the record of daily human existence. His art is a celebration of the Maasai, the Buganda Kingdom, African royalty, musicians, warriors, dancers, and he definitely celebrates the beauty of African women. His compelling images have been used by numerous non-profit organizations such as the United Way, UNICEF, and the Kidney Foundation. Among his collectors are Dionne Warwick- the singer, Her Royal Highness the Queen of Buganda Nnabagereka, and Susan Taylor, Editorial Director, ESSENCE Magazine.

GEORGE LANGBROEK, osa, sca.

George Langbroek describes his work as his exploration of that most controversial of life's urges – the passions of eros, which never ceases to fascinate and stimulate his imagination. As an artist who is a Christian, he has often used Solomon's Song of Songs as an inspiration and guide. This song or poem contains exquisite love lyrics and is very explicit sexually, as he believes his work does as well, for his work has often been referred to as visual poetry. It proclaims an integrated wholeness that is at the centre of a selfgiving journey of discovery and fulfillment. He believes that men and women are made physically, emotionally, and spiritually to live in love.

“In my work, passion and eros are not quashed under Christian prohibitions and puritanical restrictions to control the lustful “body”. Rather, despite our selfish failures in love, I'm still a bit of a romantic, the body is celebrated as a gift for mutual union and gratification of two diverse personalities in love.”

George Langbroek studied at Three Schools of Art, Toronto, The Ontario College of Art, and at the Dundas School of Art in Dundas, Ontario.

Recent solo exhibitions include those at the Institute for Christian Studies, the Niagara Pump House Art Centre, the University of Toronto Faculty Club, Troussonian Gallery, St. Catharines, Tyndale College and Seminary, Kitchener-Waterloo Art Gallery, the Gallery @M.U.M.C., Hamilton, John W. Hess Gallery, Elizabethtown, PA, Calvin College Center Art Gallery, Grand Rapids, Michigan. Juried exhibitions include ones at the Woodstock Gallery, Woodstock, The Women's Art Institute, Toronto, Visions Gallery, Albany, N.Y., Galerie Ahrens, Wijk bij Duurstede, Netherlands, and Concordia University Art Gallery, Mequon, Wisconsin Awards include: Reformed Worship Magazine, 1st place - Society of Canadian Artists juried exhibition, 1st place - "Art on the Edge" JB Aird Gallery, Toronto, Jurors Award SCA. George Langbroek has curated a number of exhibits, lectures, and does some teaching.

"...painting is about believing in the esoteric power of colour. This belief allows the expression of surrounding world, emotions and temptations which drive artist and viewer to communicate effectively together. Studying art is a lifetime process of comprehending the spiritual body of human being. In this process of discovery, the artist familiarizes an audience with the secret language of art." REET MAE. Ms Mae is a well known Estonian textile artist, whose earliest exhibits turned leftover and discarded fabrics into works of art, expanded the use of traditional quilting techniques and created “soft sculpture” pieces that were 3 dimensional. This work has embraced both secular and liturgical themes.

Her first solo exhibit in 1974 was entitled, “Beast”, and the Toronto Star referred to it as “the kind kids like to hang in their bedrooms.” In 1978, a major exhibition of her liturgical work took place in the St. Lawrence Centre in Toronto and later in Nova Scotia as part of a festival of “Women in the Arts”. In 1984, Ms Mae was invited to exhibit her work at the international conference, Esto ‘84, as part of the “Estonian Women Artists” exhibit. During the past decade, Ms Mae has been invited to exhibit her mosaic work made from discarded materials in various “Green” art shows and sales, as well as create a ceramic piece for the “Wheel Project” at the Gardiner Museum of Ceramic Art, 2002.

Ms Mae’s best known soft sculpture piece entitled “Amazing Grace” is a 4-piece liturgical banner that was commissioned for the chapel of Tyndale University College and Seminary, and completed with the help of twenty volunteers over a two-year period. This piece, complex both in content and construction and made entirely in silk, includes two silk paintings and is embellished with thousands of glass beads. The work can be viewed on-site at Tyndale. “Amazing Grace” was selected for inclusion in “Glowing Colours”, the second Ontario Exhibit of Liturgical Art, held in 2002.

Ms Mae’s art reflects her interest in issues of social justice as well as the work of God’s spirit in human lives. Ms Mae named her studio “Beauty from Ashes” as an expression of her belief in the power of God to transform our mourning into dancing. In March, 2004, Ms Mae experienced a miracle of God’s healing after a ten-year period of illness. This experience now permeates her creative and artistic outlook, as well as her faith.

Ms Mae is a member of the Estonian Society of Artists in Canada, as well as the Estonian Ethnographic Society. She has also worked with Mae Productions in digital and new media, producing a DVD for the Bishop’s Committee on Prayer, and directing a video on an Estonian master musician. Her interests include racial and cultural identity as expressed in art, movement and music. “Beauty from Ashes is a statement of the purpose and context of Ms Mae’s artistic, creative and life endeavours, seeking out that which is discarded or considered of no value, and either creating something of beauty from it, or finding alternative uses for it.”

LYNNE McILVIDE EVANS. Artist's statement. "I am drawn to interiors: the Basilica of St. Francis in Assisi, Santa Croce in Florence, and Sainte Chapelle in Paris. I seek to emulate the density of the surface I experience in these Cathedrals by carpeting wooden box frames with two and three-dimensional patterns and symbols. In these Cathedrals, there is an element of obscurity: a beauty veiled by scaffolding, distance, and other beauty. Similarly, there is an element of hidden-ness in my paintings. I am also drawn to the murky interiors of the human heart and mind – where memory clings."

Lynne shows widely across the province and elsewhere. Current and up-coming exhibitions are to be at the David Kaye Gallery, Toronto, the Uxbridge Studio Tour, Tyndale College, Toronto, and The Magic Door Gallery in Sunderland, Ontario. Recent shows have included those shown in The Lookout Gallery at the University of British Columbia, the Robert McLaughlin Gallery in Oshawa, the Homer Watson Gallery in Kitchener, the Centricity Gallery in London, Ontario, the Joseph D. Carrier Gallery in North York, the Newman Centre, the John B. Aird Gallery and the York Quay Centre, all in Toronto.

MARIKO USHIDO. "Mariko Ushido began expressing herself with art at age 5, taking up figurative drawing, and graduating to painting by age 8. During her early years, she acquired acute observational skills useful for discerning subtle nuances within human expression which she captured in her art by applying slight variations in colour, anatomical position, and background mood. Accentuating this sense of human communication through her art, Mariko was an early admirer of noted female Japanese comic artists such as Masumi Moriwaki, and Moto Hagio. More recently, the artist has taken further instruction in pencil, pastel, acrylics, and notably, the technique of East African modern batik painting, as instructed by noted African-Canadian artist, David Kibuuka. The unique painterly qualities of this contemporary fine art medium, distinct and separate from traditional batik dying originating in Indonesia, allows the artist the full range of colour, composition, and visual impact normally reserved for oils and acrylics.

Mariko has made full use of this potent medium for her most recent works, which benefit from her extraordinary sense of placement, proportion, space, colour, and mood. The source for much of Mariko's recent works remains her refined and heightened sense of awareness of humankind and its interaction with the world. In her newest pieces, the artist succeeds in "combining my feelings, emotions, and ideas with my brush to reveal other dimensions of our world – another world we can't easily see."

– Alexander Calder, Curator

The ARTROOM, San Francisco Fine Arts Center for East Africa

Mariko's work has been shown across the world including The Orangery, Holland Park, Kensington, Chelsea, London, England, The Commonwealth Institute, London, England, Zaventem, Belgium, The Capital Gallery, Kyoto, Japan, and in the Gallery Hittite, and The Ashanti Room in Toronto.

SUSAN WALLIS. Susan Wallis was born in Toronto's west end. Since graduating from the University of Toronto with a B.A. in Fine Art History and Studio Art, Susan concentrated her creative talents on the areas of interior design, exhibit display and special program management. Today, Susan manages smaller scale yet distinctive projects and is the supplier of the Genie and Gemini Awards for the Canadian Academy of Cinema and Television. Consequently this allows Susan more time to pursue her first passion – painting.

Susan was introduced to the medium of encaustic paintings by purchasing an encaustic painting during the Riverdale Artwalk in 2002. She continued to pursue training and hands-on education in the medium and showcased her first paintings one year later to a wonderful public response during the 2003 Riverdale Artwalk. She has not looked back.

A common theme in Susan's work is the birch tree. Inspired by the tree's graceful shape and unusual bark, Susan pays homage to this tree in many of her works. In Celtic mythology the birch tree is the symbol of renewal and rebirth, a theme that Susan feels parallels her return/rebirth to painting.

Susan has resided in the east Toronto neighbourhood of South Riverdale for the last fourteen years with her husband, their two children and “the beagle”, and most recently “the basset”. Her family recently bought an old farmhouse in Prince Edward County and spend as many week-ends and summers as possible renovating and enjoying the splendour of country life. Susan is represented in the County by Mad Dog Gallery, and Canvas Gallery and Grace Gallery in Toronto.

Encaustic Painting. Encaustic painting dates as far back as the 5th Century B.C. The word “Encaustic” originated with the ancient Greek meaning “to burn”. The most well known encaustic paintings are the Fayum mummy portraits of Roman Egypt. Together with the frescoes and objects of Pompeii and Herculaneum, these paintings are among the most well preserved art from ancient times. What makes encaustic unique is the HEAT. Temperature adds a new dimension not found when using other mediums. The pigment mixed with the wax cools as soon as it is applied. It can then be re-heated using heat guns and irons, and reworked over and over again. The medium acts as an adhesive, a preservative, a matting agent, a glossing agent and a transparentizer.

JULITA WOLANSKA. Julita Wolanska was raised and educated in Poland, but fell in love with Canada in 1987 and found her home in Toronto. Here she has developed and strengthened her artistic proficiency, and continues her creative explorations to find new ways of expression. She believes that art is a universal translator and sophisticated communication tool for it has the power to still time, embrace uniqueness, and liberate emotions. She likes to paint serene esoteric landscapes and vibrant still life. Her abstracts represent not only her feelings, but concepts, visions and ideas. Her paintings are in private collections in Canada and Europe.

RIBBON OF HOPE – six hundred squares of silk screened denim patches marked with individual prayers, concerns and memorials were sewn together to form one great ribbon to remember friends and families who have lost loved ones and those currently infected by HIV and AIDS.

The Ribbon of Hope Project completed at The Anglican Church of Canada General Synod in June 2004 is part of the Primate’s World Relief and Development Fund initiative, Partnership for Life. The 40-foot ribbon is a symbol that threads together our prayers, our remembrances, our hope for a world living with HIV and AIDS.

It has traveled multiple times across Canada since its creation, and people continue to add squares, communicating from the heart.

CASEY HOUSE QUILTS. Casey House Hospice, founded in 1988, is a specialty hospital providing a continuum of care for patients affected by HIV/AIDS. Palliative and supportive care services are provided in the residential hospice located on Huntley Street in Toronto, and in partnership with community organizations. Casey House is based on a holistic philosophy of care that includes the emotional and spiritual needs of terminally ill people. Casey House has developed bereavement rituals that address the unique needs of those grieving a death from AIDS. The Casey House quilts are a way to openly acknowledge a death that is often mourned in silence or alone. Every year a quilt is crafted by volunteers and bears the name of each person who lived and died at Casey House that year. Two have been loaned for this exhibition.
